land," or tast Whitman prevented the trade, any more worthy of credence Let us examine this allegation also. In the first place, there was no question of fisherns in 1842. By the treaty of 118 the right of the people of the United Sta es to fish on the Newfoundland coast within certain limits, and to cure fish in the insettled creeks and hexa, was sacured to them "forever," [6] since which time there had been no occasion to refer to this subject, the American fishermen obtaining all the codish they desired by a treaty right. [7] In the second place, the Ashburton treat, with which fisheries had nothing to do, was only concerned with the Maine boundary, and did not relate to Oregon at all. For fifty years the two governments had been negotiating boundaries without being able to settle this small portion satisfactorile. It stood at the way of the Oregon question [8] and other important questions. Before

SMALL MATTERS.—The city fathers were in something of a urry to get through with the usiness of the council last night, but when terdes made a motion to adjourn they concluded to stick it out until the business was finished, Gredes alled attention to the fact that wither the chief of police nor one of his capalins was in attendance. Some one said that he would probably arrive som with all the terms, which was deemed satisfactory. A bill of Sorenson for wood was commented on at some length, and Genies said the chief of nolice sould be instructed to buy no more wood from him, as he had refused to pay license as a vharfinger. Another member said that the carge for fir wood was a dollar a cont too much. A hill of $H for pulling a tood from the law of the notorious Mrs. Curco excised languer.
